ActiveGuard™ vs Encasements

Feature	ActiveGuard™	Encasement
Ease of Installation	✓ Simple; less than one minute by one person with no required training	Often requires two people extended time; professionals are suggested to first practice
Simple Sizing	✓ Four sizes fit all	Precise sizing; 16+ SKUs
Kills bed bugs	✓ 100% generally within 72 hrs; even many resistant strains studied	Over one year through starvation
Durability	✓ Impervious to ripping or tearing	Prone to ripping and tearing; repairs questionable
Maintenance	✓ Maintenance-Free	Require constant surveillance for breaches
Preventative Strategy	✓ Kills bed bugs prior to potential infestation	Limited to protecting mattress and box spring
Published Data	✓ Lab and Field data	Only Lab data
Kills dust mites	✓ Lab and Field tested; maintenance-free	No activity; requires monthly encasement maintenance to be effective
Susceptible to Tearing	✓ No, made of strong polyester netting	Common problem is ripping on box springs
Repair Strategy	✓ No Repairs Necessary; continue to work even if torn	Suggested strategy is using commercial duct tape
Obstructions	✓ None applicable to installation	Suggested to clear any obstructions to ensure against ripping

ActiveGuard™ Mattress Liners (www.allergytechnologies.com) are a revolutionary new product that kill bed bugs dead generally within 72 hours. Used as part of a bed bug treatment program, this revolutionary product is capable of preventing bed bug infestations before they establish. Developed as a natural extension of the globally used mosquito nets, ActiveGuard kills bed bugs in mattresses and box springs continuously 24/7 for up to two years.

Superior to any other bedding cover, these breathable, thin liners can be installed onto a mattress or box spring by one person in less than a minute. ActiveGuard is comfortable and provides security, prevention and control that no other mattress covering can deliver. ActiveGuard Mattress Liners require no airborne sprays or powders, and are not subject to the ripping and tearing frequently experienced by encasements that render them useless.

ActiveGuard Mattress Liners have demonstrated to be effective when tested against a variety of resistant strains by research entomologists and have been the subject of many published lab and field studies.
